

PAUL O'KELLY BIOGRAPHYPAUL O'KELLY

Paul utilizes the Four Decisions® framework to help leaders implement their strategies better than the competition. The former manager of European marketing for Olin offers his clients two decades of experience and a passion to create compelling vision, to develop breakthrough strategies and to build high performance teams.

Paul has challenged clients in Ireland, Europe and across the world to make the breakthroughs they need in their thinking, planning and performance so that they can achieve previously unimagined ambitions. He has worked with companies from every sector including cutting-edge technologies, medical devices, bio-sciences, software, professional services, food, mining, energy, industrial products, retail, web-based business, not-for-profit, government and education.

An expert in Appreciative Inquiry and the application of practical positive psychology, he has facilitated workshops with more than 400 people and engaged 8,000 individuals in strategic planning. His clients have included well-known companies such as Ericsson and New Balance and award-winning high potential start-ups and fast growth companies.
